The Homemakers will meet in separate sessions all four days. Fulton County Homemakers delegation will stay in Kinkead Hall.

Kentucky Highway Department Makes Postwar Road Plans

Fulton Area To Be Included In Highway Contracts To Be Let Soon; 14.75 Miles Improved

The Kentucky Highway Department has called for bids to spend an estimated $2,375,000 on the first phase of its postwar road program, almost one-fifth of the total contracts expected to be awarded by next June 30.

Commissioner J. Stephen Watkins said the initial bids to be opened January 18 would include improvements on three federal north-south highways, U. S. 27, U. S. 25-W and U. S. 31-E.

Kentucky has 27,000,000 in federal aid coming to its road program in three of the next four years, which, matched by State, which makes $54,000,000 available for roads exclusive of other state contracts.

The commissioner said the State would do very little new construction on its own initiative. Most of it will be incorporated in the federal program, leaving mostly maintenance work at State expense.

In addition to federal aid projects he said plans for surfacing two state roads connecting the Fulton area in Western Kentucky with newly developed Kentucky. This project will include work on highways 129 and 94 from Dukedom to Tri-City, 14-28 miles, connecting Fulton with the lake.

The letter explained that the scenic beauty of the site is unsurpassed and it is located near the center of the United States.

"The greatest gold cache of the world is located in Kentucky and this should be an added interest of world diplomats," the letter said.

FULTON RAILROAD MAN RETIRES AFTER 40 YEARS

Joel Erranton, after 40 years service with the Illinois Central Railroad, went on the retirement list on January 1, 1946. He entered the service of the Illinois in June, 1905 as section foreman. He transferred to the Tennessee Division at Fulton as brakeman in 1908. In September, 1913, he moved to the Fulton yards as a switchman.

Mr. Erranton, whose hobby is fishing, says he is going to have a lot of time to catch up on his favorite sport.

Always win fools first. They talk much, and what they have once uttered they will stick to; whereas there is always time—up to the last moment, to bring before a wise man arguments that may entirely change his opinion.—Helps

EDITORIAL MEMORIAL STADIUM

As a result of a movement started and supported by the Fulton Lions Club, a fund is being raised with which to build a Memorial Stadium in Fulton. Already coming in. It is a very worthy community cause, in which every civic-minded citizen is interested.

But everybody wants to know where the stadium will be built. That will be up to the final decision of the school board, we are told. There seems to be two schools of thought in the matter. Some favor the erection of the stadium near the school, while another group leans toward the stadium being established at Fairfield Park, with that park being arranged as a community center, for all sports and activities.

The latter group believes that a much finer playground could be built here for the school, and for the community with provision made for a football stadium, and for a baseball park in season. It is contended that erection of a stadium is a community-wide affair, as is the maintenance of a community playground for all activities, and that much wider interest and support could be obtained if the public realized just what plans will be made along this line.

Regardless of what is done, or where the stadium is built, it is one of the finest movements this city has seen. It deserves the support of all. Anything that will promote the unity of purpose and action in this civic project should be given careful and serious consideration—for now and the future.

Negro Girl Burned Alive As Anderson Hotel Burned Here

An exploding oil stove started a fire in the Anderson Hotel in Missionary Bottom, negro section, here Friday afternoon. The flames spread swiftly, destroying the hotel, and burned to death Louise Centers, 22, of Mayfield, as she slept in a room across the hall from where the fire originated. It is estimated that the damage was about $4,000, the hotel building owned by the Anderson Estate, with Otto Dunn manager of the hotel and liquor store.

The fire is said to have originated in the room occupied by John Bradford, negro, I. C. depot porter. An oil stove exploded, and he suffered severe burns about the face and hands. Both fire trucks were called to the fire, but the building and contents were a complete loss.

Louise Centers, the negro girl, was a step-daughter of Robert Spivey, Illinois Central employe.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR WORK

We re-learned one important lesson during the war years. It was a lesson, the application of what made this country great in the past and gave the world a new goal of prosperity and freedom at which to aim. This lesson was that there is no substitute for hard work.

A wise man once said that ninety percent of what men call genius is only a talent for hard work. And he was pretty near right. The great discoveries, the great inventions, the great deeds we acclaim were done by men with an infinite capacity for taking pains, by men who were not easily discouraged, who went right on working even when they didn't want to keep at it, who just wouldn't give up as long as there was something to be done.

There isn't any other way to succeed. Success must have a firm foundation if it is to be permanent and that firm foundation takes energy and labor and courage to build aright.

During our prosperous years, we sought too often for short cuts to what we wanted. We let our wishes govern our actions. We hunted madly an Aladdin's lamp which we could simply rub to make our wildest dreams come true. We indulged in snap courses. "Learn without effort," "Reduce without exercise or dieting." "Easy jobs at good pay" were our slogans. We didn't want to give up to succeed—but success comes only through self-sacrifice, not by sacrificing others.

In war we again learned the habit of work. All of us had something to do, and we found out that the more we did, the more we could do. We developed new skills—from the white collar men who went into the factories to the housekeeper who went back into the kitchen. We all learned how to work—and above all to work together.

Now the war is over, are we satisfied to go back to our pre-war attitudes? Or will we put the new knowledge into making this world we have worked to save, the world in which we want to live, the world we want to pass down to future generations. If we work as hard for peace as we did for war we can win the victory of peace and set up for all times the kind of a world of which we have dreamed, a world of opportunity for work, for service for all mankind.

FARMERS HOLD UP THEIR END

When one stops to analyze different elements of our population engaged in industry, agriculture and labor, it is impossible to escape the conviction that whenever these great groups close their ranks and move ahead in orderly ways that they are all bound to strengthen their country and improve their own individual conditions. Right now a good part of our country and its affairs seems to be suffering from dizziness. However there is no question as to the direction agriculture wants to go. The farmer's main aim in life is to produce as abundantly as he knows how. It has been part of farm thinking in all times to weigh the goodness of the earth in terms of bumper harvests, livestock fattened for market, and well-laden dinner tables.

While industry was adding millions of workers to its payroll, and engaged in near civil warfare with strikers, agriculture was unable to get enough new machinery and often not enough repair parts for its needs. While industry built thousands of new plants and expanded thousands of old plants, agriculture had to be content with merely making better use of its acres, animals, and equipment.

But you have got to take off your hats to the farmers, who have held up their heads and fought nobly to the end that they have never failed to hold up their end.

MAKE THEM GOOD ENOUGH!

The government—or in other words, the taxpayer—is about to embark on a tremendous and very necessary inter-regional highway building program. Both from the standpoint of national defense and national prosperity, it is essential that we have these highways as soon as possible.

Harvey C. Fruehauf, Detroit truck-trailer manufacturer, points out that much as we need these highways as soon as possible, the specifications for them should be re-examined before construction begins. States Fruehauf: "The inter-regional highway system was conceived prior to the war as a military defense measure as well as a commercial asset. This coast-to-coast system was approved by the U. S. Public Roads Administration.

"The planners did a good job in the light of pre-war ideas. However, in the light of post-war thinking, the specifications for the proposed highways are in many respects behind the times from the standpoint of both military and commercial transport developments and plans.

"Fortunately, there is still time to stop and examine the proposed specifications before construction is started. For example, present military vehicles of the fast mobile type used by our armies are wider than those contemplated in the new highway system. They are also heavier.

"It is also doubtful if enough emphasis has been given to the fact that bridges are weak-links in the chain. They restrict highway capacity by not matching the capacity of the roads. These are important matters.

"We should get started at once on the construction of a modern system of highways, but before actual work begins, let us be sure we are making this highway system adequate. We should re-check our specifications with military and vehicle engineers as well as the road-building authorities. The American public wants and needs an adequate highway system."

CRIME WAVE SWEEPS THE NATION

Edgar J. Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation reminds his fellow countrymen that "after every great war or period of national emergency there has been a recession of moral fortitude." In more common terms there is a wholesale increase of crimes, a multiplication of crooks. Mr. Hoover is number A-1 authority. And, sad to note, he points the finger of shame on juvenile delinquents.

He pointed out that the arrests of girls under 18 have increased 198 per cent since 1939 while arrests for boys under 18 have increased 46 per cent for homicide, 70 per cent for rape, 39 per cent for robbery, 72 per cent for assault, 55 per cent for auto theft's and 191 per cent for drunkenness and driving while intoxicated.

No one should be deceived that there will be jobs for everyone under the American system. In the first place that system gives the individual some freedom of choice as to when and where he will work and what he will do. Some people wish to do different things and individuals and society both benefit from that freedom. Some will move from one job to another. Industry has its ups and downs, with their effect upon employment. Frankly, there are many people who do not want to work industriously and no one wishes to employ them.

There are many things which the law cannot do. Congress can pass a law commanding that everyone be happy. That might state the good intentions of the government, but it would not create universal happiness. The law contemplates that married people should dwell together in harmony. Today there are about a third as many divorces as marriages in America. Congress might pass a resolution commanding good health for everyone. But people can be well and strong only as individuals if they do those things which tend to counteract disease and make recovery from illness. Even doctors cannot save those who do not wish to get well.

So it is with labor and opportunity. There has seldom been a time in America in which honest, industrious, skillful and ambitious people have not had all of the work they needed wished. There never will be a time when there will be opportunity for those who do not wish to be industrious or skillful. To try to make a job for everyone, a thing which has many appealing aspects, will take from part of mankind that quality of ambition, determination and industry which lies at the basis of character, individual success and national advancement. After all is said and done, it is in industry, ability and character of the people, that the greatness of any nation lies.

A petition signed by a group of Rhode Island citizens and submitted to the President of the United States, protests against the continued trend toward socialism in the United States. It touches on the problem of the federal debt with the statements that: "A debt of $250 billion would mean an average of over $1,800 per person. For a family of five the amount would be $9,000.

"Let us take the figure of $1,800 per person and apply it to the state of Rhode Island. According to the 1940 census, Rhode Island then had a population of 713,346. At $1,800 per person, Rhode Island's share of the federal debt at the end of the war would be $1,284,000,000 as compared with its own state debt of little more than $21 million. Think what this would mean in Kentucky or Tennessee.

The picture is dark on the production front in 1946, and the shopping public might as well realize right now that the cost on everything is certain to rise to great heights before it falls. Even though the war demands are over, strikes and trouble on the production front, will make prices rise... for much merchandise cannot be replaced from wholesaler at the price retailers are selling their present stock for. So, if anyone needs anything it will be worth their while to buy it as soon as they can—if they can find it—for as 1946 progresses there is certain to be a further rise in prices.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Life" is the subject of the Lesson Sermon which will be read in all Christian Science churches thru out the world on Sunday, January 29, 1946.

The Golden Text is: "He that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." (Gal. 6:8).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on Him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life." (John 5:24)

In this world, it is not what we take up, but what we give up, that makes us rich.—H. W. Beecher

THE GOLDEN RULE

by Ruth Taylor

In an excellent editorial in a New York paper recently, there was one sentence which greatly impressed me. "The only rule that works both ways is the Golden Rule."

The Golden Rule is the one rule that if sincerely followed could bring peace to all the world. Nation would no longer war against nation, nor people against people, class against class, race against race, creed against creed.

The Golden Rule is the solution to all of the problems that beset our world today—and it begins with the individual. It does not require wealth to apply it. It needs but a sincere belief in justice and fair play and an honest desire to put into practice the second great commandment "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

The Golden Rule is a personal rule of life. It does not demand great sacrifices. It does not demand great deeds of courage. It demands only that each man do unto his neighbor as he would be done by.

Under the Golden Rule, there are no master races of "Herrnvolk." The rich cannot say "My interests are vested in me." The poor cannot cry "My needs come first." The employer cannot put his profits first, nor the worker his wages. Nor can any group, by virtue of class or color or creed, claim special privilege.

Under the Golden Rule there is no discrimination and all men not only have rights but responsibilities. Rights are but the rewards of duties well done—and the full duty of man, which is the distinguishing mark that has lifted him above the beasts of the field, is that he assumes responsibilities for the rights of his neighbor.

The Golden Rule is the law of brotherhood. It is the law of kindness and of friendliness. It is the law which can be followed by the humblest as well as by those in highest authority. The Golden Rule is the law of life—of that love which is the fulfilling of the law.

"Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them! for this is the law and the prophets."

THE NEW YEAR — 1946

Now, in these final lingering moments before a New Year dawns, comes a fitting time in which to assess the past and to assay the future.

The year just past has been a crucible for all of us, searching our hearts and tempering our resolves. We, as a people, learned to know the dead weight of many burdensome days. Of rheim! Okinawa! Iwo Jima! Fearful days in a thousand and bloody, memorable places!

These were trying times—times that tested the strength and courage of America. Nor was America found wanting! He sons marched bravely into battle, often into death. And those who remained behind redoubled their efforts, manned the factories, tenaciously tilled the soil and cut and hauled pulpwood from our forests.

Bue we who lived in 1945 have also known the glory of Peace . . . Peace in Europe . . . and then in the Pacific and throughout the world!

This year is at its close. Our hopes have turned to 1946. What fate awaits us there in those still uncharted months that lay ahead? Some things we know . . .

We know that in the midst of peace we will be fighting to preserve it. Not with guns and bullets! Not with planes and tanks! But with swords that have been beaten into plowshares, spears that have become pruning hooks . . . yes, and other steel converted into axes and saws.

In 1946 the fight is for prosperity. To win this final battle there must be full production in factories, in the harvests taken from the soil, in the top quality pulpwood cut from our forests.

Ours is not a great industrial city. But there are good jobs to be had on farms, and there are good jobs in woods and mills nearby.

By pulling together and working together we can win through to prosperity in 1946. And if we do, we shall all have the HAPPY NEW YEAR that we so sincerely wish to every one of our readers.

We shall be judged, not by what we might have been but what we have been. —Sewell.

This Kentucky girl has lived in an iron lung more than a year now. Like hundreds of others crippled by dreaded polio, she is slowly responding to treatment provided by the State Chapter of the National Foundation For Infantile Paralysis.

HELP FIGHT INFANTILE PARALYSIS

Every year thousands of our young people are struck down by polio. It leaves most of them crippled and exhausted, and greatly in need of expert care if they are to make any progress on the long road toward recovery.

And regardless of race, creed or condition, the National Foundation For Infantile Paralysis comes in and provides the help necessary to repair, as much as possible, the damage done to the victims of this disease. Such work calls for long and expensive hospital and clinical treatment, with special equipment for many patients.

In addition, the Foundation carries on extensive research into the cause, prevention and cure of polio (otherwise known as "the Crippler") which eventually will conquer the Enemy. It is a goal worthy of man's best efforts . . . but it takes a lot of money.

To maintain its program during the next twelve months, the Foundation must have additional funds. So it is conducting a drive—January 14 to 31—through State and County organizations. Half the money raised is retained for local aid. The remainder goes into a general fund to assure every victim of infantile paralysis, regardless of means, the best medical care science can provide.

Give as generously as you can. If you are not solicited, mail your subscription to your County Polio Fund Chairman. But Give! And help end the dismal toll exacted by "the Crippler" every year.

FROM THE STATE CAPITOL

The 1946 General Assembly on Tuesday elected Harry Lee Waterfield as speaker of the House, Jerry Howell Democratic floor leader, Edward Denney Republican floor leader, Richard P. Meloney Democratic Senate floor leader, Alex Howard president pro tem and Ray B. Moss Republican floor leader. The Democratic majorities are 21-17 in the Senate and 69-31 in the House. The caucuses held on Monday were the scenes of contests which aroused the wildest speculations about the future course of John Y. Brown of Lexington, and Claude Hammons, of Corbin.

In the Democratic Caucus Brown was defeated by Jerry Howell by only one vote. Brown had been confident that his refusal to seek the speakership against Waterfield would be rewarded by the Donaldson faction with only formal opposition for the post of floor leader. Monday night in the Capitol Hotel Brown and his supporters were bitter in the disappointment and it was no secret that many thought that Brown had been double crossed somehow and could be expected to cause the majority party no end of trouble before the session ended.

It was secret either that all day Monday Republicans and Democrats both feared or expected that Claude Hammons would be even more trouble—some than Brown. Only a few days earlier Governor

Willis had forwarded charges of misconduct against Hammons for presentation to the next grand jury in session in Corbin. Until that time it had been expected that Hammons would be elected Republican floor leader with little opposition in the house, a position which he had held before twice and again during the latter half of the 1944 session. There was no doubt that Hammons was bitter toward the governor or that he seemed to be getting assurances of sympathy from almost everyone in the lobby. He may work with the Democratic majority during the session. Thus it was a badly confused legislature which listened to the Governor's message and the report from the Legislative Council after the Legislature had organized on Tuesday. Both parties seem to be split wide open at this time.

The legislative council, composed of eleven Democrats and seven Republicans brought in a unanimous report which endorsed the doings of Gov. Willis' Tax Revision Commission which had been at work for many months. It recommended expenditures of $46,400,611 for the first year of the biennium and slightly less for the second year, about 10,000,000 more than the governor's budgetary recommendations. Willis recommended strict economy in appropriations, the repeal of the personal but not the property income tax, and approximately $2,000,000 in increases for public welfare and negro education. The governor's budget would keep expenditures within the expected revenues for the next two years; the Council's would appropriate also the estimated $10,000,000 surplus of June 30, 1946. Such a program will necessitate the sharp reduction in appropriations by the 1948 General assembly, or the raising of an additional $10,000,000 each year through new taxes.

To predict now the outcome of the session would seem generally impossible. It does seem however, that John Fred Williams will make every possible effort to fulfill his pledges to the teachers and the schools, even though it means opposing the Governor's budget recommendations, which are that the schools be denied the $6,568,056 increase which Williams has asked and the Legislative Council and the Tax Revision Commission has recommended. The Governor is expected to obtain the repeal of the personal income tax and the $1,000,000 needed for the Darnell Hospital. Williams will get something for the common schools even though the colleges requests for capital outlay may be denied, since it is doubtful whether building could be completed in the face of a nationwide demand for priorities for small home construction, particularly for veterans, within the next two or three years anyway. Hammons and Brown will have considerable influence on legislation whether Willis or Donaldson like it or not. It will be a session to see many many bitter fight on the floor and behind the scenes in the lobbies and the hotels.

THE AMERICAN WAY

THE GOLDEN RULE

By GEORGE PECK

Oliver Emmerich, publisher of the McComb (Mississippi) Enterprise Journal, recently made the following short, pithy comment on his editorial page:

"Congress this year was asked to appropriate eight million dollars to investigate new war weapons. Now how about an appropriation to sell the people on the principles of the Golden Rule and the Ten Commandments?"

Publisher-editor Emmerich has sounded a note that can well be enlarged upon; he has asked a question that should give every peace-loving American cause to do some serious thinking; and as a by-product, he has provided the clergy of America with an excellent theme upon which to expound with eloquent fervor in their pulpits.

No one can quarrel with the alertness of Congress in providing the funds to insure that this nation shall have the latest and best weapons of defense. The lesson of Pearl Harbor is too recently learned; the memory of that cowardly, unwarranted surprise attack is still vivid in our minds; and we are determined that never again shall we be caught unprepared by an aggressor nation.

But editor Emmerich aptly has pointed out another phase of preparedness, equally if not more important, than having on tap the last word in destructive weapons and an ample force of highly-trained men prepared to use those weapons. We can also gird ourselves with constructive weapons, weapons forged from the principles of the Golden Rule and the Ten Commandments.

World leadership has been thrust upon us. We didn't desire it, nor did we seek it. But, today the eyes of the world are upon America and on this nation rests the responsibility for the future well-being of a goodly proportion of the world's citizens.

The example we set will be world over. The manner in which we conduct our internal affairs, in which we iron out the differences between labor and management, between agriculture and labor, between races, between religious faiths, between classes; in which we run our Federal state and local governments, will determine the course of action of many nations that are looking to America for leadership.

Therefore, all things whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, do ye even so unto them. That is the Golden Rule we must practice in our every day surroundings. The spirit of America stems from the tens of thousands of its communities. If the peoples of the individual communities are pursuing a course of decency, consideration and tolerance, then that same spirit will imbue the states and carry through to the nation's capital.

Retonga A Blessing To Him Says Minister

Was Down To Only 110 lbs. And Neither Medicine Or Will Power Seemed To Help Him, He States. Retonga Brought Prompt Relief.

REV. RALPH Z. MULLINS

"Retonga has been such a blessing to me that I feel it a duty and a privilege to publicly recommend it," declares Rev. Ralph Z. Mullins, of Greenville, Ala., one of the most widely known and beloved men in the South Central section of the state. Discussing his happy experience Rev. Mullins stated:

"A serious illness pulled me down to 110 lbs. and I seemed unable to come back. My appetite was gone and everything I ate seemed to form gas in my stomach that pressed against my chest until I often felt like I could hardly breathe. At night I frequently had to get up and walk the floor to get relief. The cure Retonga brought was a blessing. I had been taking medicine and nothing seemed to help me. The relief Retonga gave me was a blessing. My appetite returned, the distress and discomfort was relieved, and I regained 30 lbs. I sleep splendidly and I feel good all the time. I hope my experience will help others find the same happy relief through Retonga that I did."

Retonga is intended to relieve distress due to insufficient flow of gastric juices in the stomach, loss of appetite, Vitamin B-1 deficiency and constipation. Accept no substitute. Retonga may be obtained at DeMyer Drug Co. adv.

WINTER ADVISORY COUNCIL OF HOMEMAKERS ASSO. WAS HELD FRIDAY AFTER., JAN. 4

Winter Advisory Council of the Fulton County Homemakers Association was held Friday afternoon January 4 in the Agriculture room of the Cayce High School Building. Twenty club presidents and county project leaders attended this meeting with the agent, Miss Margaret Howard and assistant state agent, Miss Zelma Monroe of the University of Kentucky.

Mrs. W. P. McClanahan, vice-president, presided at the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. Billie McGhee.

Mrs. Cecil Shaw called the roll with eight clubs answering the roll call followed by the reading of the minutes and the treasurers report. Reports were given by each of the county leaders which were very good.

Miss Monroe outlined the program for Farm and Home Convention which meets in Lexington, January 28 to February 1. Miss Howard reported that Fulton county delegates will stay in Kinkaid Hall on the University Campus. Mrs. Billie McGhee was elected as county delegate to go to the convention with Mrs. W. P. McClanahan, alternate. It was voted by the council to pay $30.00 toward the expenses of the delegates.

Miss Howard told the council that it was possible this year to have a district Homemaker Camp and asked that it be discussed in the clubs. She also reported that $38 had been given for the Frances Jewel McVey Scholarship Fund which has been turned in by the former president, Mrs. J. C. Lawson.

The next Council Meeting will be held in March.

Miss Angie McNutt, Home Demonstration Agent, from Ballard County gave the lesson on Simple Electrical Repair at the Home Management leader's training school Thursday, January 3 in the Cayce High School Building. Sixteen home management leaders and the agent, Miss Howard, attended this lesson to carry back the information to their clubs.

In the morning, Miss McNutt discussed the repair of cords demonstrating the correct procedure to follow after which each of the leaders present repaired a cord according to the directions.

In the afternoon, the same procedure was followed in the repair of outlet plugs and appliance plugs. Miss McNutt discussed with the group the different types of electric cords and their uses, the cautions to take in repair, and the care that should be given cords and plugs.

The Homemakers schedule for the week of January 14 to 18 is as follows:

- Jan. 14—Crutchfield, Mrs. Willie McClanahan, 10:30 a. m.
- Jan. 15—Victory, Mrs. Reginald Williamson, 10:45 a. m.
- Jan. 16—Hickman, Mrs. T. J. Majors, 10:30 a. m.
- Jan. 17—Montgomery, Mrs. Nelson Hickerson, 10:30 a. m.
- Jan. 18—Palestine, Mrs. Edd Thompson, 10:30 a. m.

TIDBITS

YAMS AND GOOBERS

Every part of America has its distinctive things to eat. We would not feel that we had been in New England if we had not had blueberry pie, and a trip to such sea-coast cities as Gloucester would be incomplete without a codfish dinner. The South's cornbread is famous and rightly so; partisans of its merits love to extol it as compared with the Middle Western cornbread that is sweetened. Roasting ears are distinctively of the Middle West and the South alike and deserve all the good things that have been said about them. No one seems to have poetized over sweet potatoes and peanuts, or yams and goobers.

Kentucky is hardly in the goober zone, though many farmers grow a small patch. We used to eat them just as they came from the shell, without taking the trouble to roast them. I am not so sure but that I still like them best in this form. I certainly have more memories as I eat them, and even food acquires much of its value from the memories it calls up. To know the peanut properly, though, we would have to go to eastern Virginia, in the Dismal Swamp area. There the peanut is an institution, as famous for its small area as cotton is everywhere in the South or corn in the Middle West. Probably we may some day grow more peanuts in Kentucky, for Dr. Carver and others have shown them to be about the most useful vegetable in the whole world.

When I speak of yams, however, all of us know what I am talking about. Only a few people whom I knew at Fidelity called the plants that, but we all understood the flavor of old-time North Carolina that the word suggested. It is a tribute to cookery that the aristocrat of the tribe of good things to eat is called "candied yams."

All of us know the life history of this sub-tropical plant, from the botbeds, where the last-years' tubers are bedded down to the finished product, served on the table of rich and poor alike. A cokoad sweet potato is good in any form. Probably more have been eaten in their roasted state than in any other way. Old-timers will recall the roasting in the big oven in front of the fire. First set the oven in some coals in front of the fire; then grease the oven slightly and place in it the potatoes, each one properly greased; add a little bit of water to produce some steam, and put on the top, covering it with coals. When the top is removed there will lie the potatoes like some sort of ripe fruit, ready to melt in your mouth. Of course, you may roast your taters in hot embers, if you like. I prefer to wrap each one in a wet paper and then place them on a bed of embers and cover them with more hot ashes. There is little difference between these two types of cooked potatoes. Again, you may want to bake them in an oven, and they are good in this way, too. Or you can boil them in water, peel them, and then bake or fry the slices. And that reminds me of a breakfast dish that I used to see often, but rarely see now—fried potatoes. We would slice raw sweet potatoes very thin and cook these slices in deep, hot grease. They cook dry in this way and seem like some sort of confection. Sweet potato pie, however rural it may be, is among the dozens of pie that I enjoy. And I would be unworthy of my rural background if I did not mention taters baked around a roast or, most poetic of all, around a big fat possum. Who feels sorry for the poor fellow who has sorghum molasses and yams? These, with some cornbread and a bit of fat bacon, just about make up an ideal feed.

Silo Simpkins Says

Rich soil is reserve wealth which can be spent in times of emergency. Woe to th farmer who says "Whoa" to conservation and soil building practices.

Rural community progress comes from hearty FOLLOWSHIP of worth while leadership.

Farm machines are human enough that they have to be in good condition to do their best work.

Permanent pastures are the cheapest and best source of feed for farm livestock, say specialists of the Agricultural Extension Service.

Friendships may improve your age, but cotton doesn't, especially if it ages in the open.

You cannot build or buy brooder equipment, etc., while baby chicks huddle in their boxes.

Soil robbery might falsely appear to pay dividends in times when farm product prices are high is still robbery.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

HARRY: "I don't know what they'll weigh up, Judge, but my cattle and poultry sure have been gettin' fatter since I started to use distillers' dried grains in their ration."

OLD JUDGE: "You're about the tenth one who has told me that, Harry. How do you account for it?"

HARRY: "The by-product recovered from grains used by distillers is very high in vitamin and protein content. It's the best feed supplement we can get to balance the rations we feed our dairy cows, livestock and poultry. Mixed with original grain, these distillers' dried grains have a much greater feeding value than the original grain has."

OLD JUDGE: "Have any trouble getting all you need?"

HARRY: "Yes, at times, even though the distillers produced 1,200,000,000 pounds of it for the year endin' last June. I hope they'll be in a position to produce a lot more next year."

OLD JUDGE: "Then I guess nobody can tell you grain is wasted in distilling."

HARRY: "Not me, Judge... I know."

Miss Florence Inlay, food specialist at the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics, suggests this recipe.

Scalloped Potatoes and Sausage

4 cups sliced raw potatoes
2 cups hot milk
1 pound sausage
1 teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons flour

Make sausage into patties and brown slowly. Scrub the potatoes thoroughly and slice very thin without yeeling. Into a greased baking dish put half the potatoes, sprinkling them with flour and half the salt. Then add the sausage patties. Cover with the remainder of the potatoes and salt. Add hot milk to cover. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, until potatoes are done or about one hour.

Variations:—1. A slice of hma about a half inch thick may be placed between the layers of potatoes. Omit the use of salt. 2. Slices of bacon may be placed on top of the scalloped potatoes when when they are about half done.

Menu: Scalloped potatoes and sausage, spinach, fruit salad, whole-wheat muffins and butter, and blackberry roll.

FIGURES SHOW EARLY CHICKS BEST PAYERS

Farmers who expect to get the greatest possible cash income from poultry flocks this year must order baby chicks now for February or early March delivery, says A. J. Chadwell, Extension poultry specialist, U-T College of Agriculture. That is, of course, if this top item on the January poultry calendar has not already been disposed of.

This matter is not so urgent for those who raise chickens purely for home food supply. Such chicks can be hatched any time. But not so for the poultry raisers who keep close tab on returns.

To support this point, Chadwell cites these figures from records of on state experiment station: Pullets hatched in February laid eggs valued at $5.47 per pullet. March hatched pullets produced eggs valued at $4.91; April hatched pullets produced eggs valued at $4.10; and May pullets did only $3.61 worth of egg producing. These records were obtained from 115 commercial poultry farms. The annual egg production of pullets hatched in different months was the same; but the early hatched pullets paid off by laying well in the fall, when prices were best.

A good plan is to buy enough chicks to replace the entire flock with pullets. The complete change should be made during the late summer or early fall months, about two weeks before the pullets start laying. If the sale of hens starts in January as they go out of production, there will be not so many hens to market in the late summer months. This plan will enable the flock owner to take advantage of higher prices for poultry meat in spring, and set the stage for high egg production from pullets in the early fall when prices are advancing.

After the order for early chicks has been placed, the next importance step is to see that their quarters are ready for immediate occupancy. Brooder houses and brooders should be checked for needed repairs. Extra equipment should be bought now. In short, you cannot buy nor repair equipment while chicks shuffle about in their shipping box and heckle you with cries of "Cheep! Cheep!" says Chadwell.

Fulton Fans Approve Plan To Join Kitty

Meeting Well Attended At Elks Club Here Tuesday Night; Guarantee Money Raised Quickly

At a meeting of local sport fans held at the Elks Club here Tuesday night, it was voted that Fulton get in the Kitty League this season. This move came about after all hope of establishing a new league in this section was abandoned, with no possibility of the proposed Midsouth league being formed.

With this decision, Fulton will either play ball in the Kitty league or not play at all. Six teams have already agreed to go in the Kitty loop, namely: Hopkinsville, Bowling Green, Owensboro, Madisonville, Mayfield, and Clarksville Tenn. That leaves Fulton and Union City who withdrew in the hope of forming a closer-knit league.

Sport fans in Union City met on Thursday night for the purpose of ironing out plans for joining the Kitty. Both Fulton and Union City will have to join before either can enter, because the loop must be composed of eight clubs, or just six as it is now.

The board of education here has assured baseball officials that the Fairfield Park will be available for the Kitty league games.

KY. HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT GETS NEW EQUIPMENT

Frankfort, Ky.—Surplus federal equipment delivered to the Department of Highways marks the first time in four years any new road building equipment has been available for purchase, J. Stephen Watkins, Commissioner of Highways said this week. All of the equipment thus far purchased or assigned to the State, except tires, is new. "The department's equipment is badly depleted," Mr. Watkins said. "This is only a fraction of what we need. We can use many times the units: thus far made available for the problem of maintenance is par amount after four years of war. The department is in constant touch with various nearby depots."

Employees of the department secured three 7 1/2-ton trucks from the depot in Cincinnati, and returned them to Frankfort Wednesday. These are specially designed for mounting shovels or cranes.

Saturday, 16 new 4-ton truck chassis were brought to Frankfort from Hammond, Indiana. Tanks will be mounted on some of these for oiling operations.

The depot at Marion, Ohio, has shipped a new tractor; and 12 new jeeps are in process of transfer from the federal custodian to the state. Another tractor, a ten-ton roller, 15 sand-spreaders, two air compressors, one asphalt tank truck, five chain hoists and forty metal work benches have been assigned by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

A drastic tire shortage was relieved when 1774 new and used truck and passenger car tires were hauled by State trucks from Columbus, Ohio and Richmond, Kentucky, for use on State equipment. The Erie Proving Grounds will ship another 150 tires shortly.
